Yerrinbool Bahá'í Centre of Learning

The property officially opened in May 1937, and designated as Yerrinbool Bahá'í School to hold "Bahá'í summer schools ", has now evolved to become a Centre of Learning. At a time when the property was not more than a vacant land embracing the residence of Boltons, Shoghi Effendi's hope and prayer were that the Bahá'ís in Australia and New Zealand would extend their support for that institution to "develop and flourish and become a centre for intense and nation-wide teaching activity throughout" Australia.

After many years of evolution, Yerrinbool Bahá'í School is now a formally registered college in Australia under the name of YBCL Ltd, offering spiritual development programs to both the Bahá'í and the wider communities.

Junior Youth
Camp

17-21 December 2010
YBCL Campus

Introduction

Junior Youth Camps are spiritual and moral development camps with primary focus on values education and character building. They are designed to be beneficial, appealing, and appropriate for junior youth from various backgrounds.

Aims and Objectives

The camps have a two-fold aim:

- I. To create bonds of love and friendship among junior youth.
- II. To familiarise participants with some understanding of issues, values, attitudes and skills related to peace within and without based on the teachings of the Bahá'í Faith. Within refers to self and without is in relationship to the human and physical environment around the self.

In the context of these aims, the camps will empower the junior youth to

- (a) develop respect for self and others, including self-awareness, self-esteem, self-trust, open-mindedness, and discipline.
- (b) to acquire values, develop attitudes and apply the skills that enable them to adopt inner peace and peaceful relationships with others.
- (c) Enhance understanding of the nature of conflict and improve their capacity to effectively resolve conflict.
- (d) Acquire values, attitudes and skills essential for living in a respectful, inclusive, peaceful and global society.
- (e) Develop willingness to protect environment and participate in its sustainable development.

Age

The YBCL Junior Youth Camp is designed for junior youth of 12-14 years of age. There are other programs available for older or younger junior youth.

Fee

A fee of $170 is charged for the Camp. This fee covers course materials, meals, and accommodation during residential programme.

Comments of Students

- Yerrinbool is a very fun and exciting place, I would LOVE to come here again!
- Junior Youth Peace camp is a great learning experience! At first, I was shy and nervous when I came to my first. Ever since then I have had so much fun, learnt so much, and made loads of new friends.
- A great camp. I have had lots of fun!! I also had the chance to meet new Baha'is.
- I have learnt a lot, more than i thought I would. It has definitely changed me too. I am now aware of the more important
